THE LATEST
POTTER'S POW-WOW.

Special to the Star.

REYMOUR THE NOTARY.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Wm. H. Seymour testified before the Committee yesterday that he is a Notary Public in New Orleans, and stated that the agreement before the Committee was sworn to before him by Mr. Anderson and a man introduced to him as Mr. Weber. Mr. Dick and Mr. Wilder, claim agents in New Orleans, were witnesses.

"I did not know the contents of the paper; an almost certain that Weber's name was not in the body of the document when presented to me. I said, 'the other name must be inserted' and it was done, but I don't know who inserted it. The signatures I think had been signed when it came to me."

THE EXAMINATION OF GENERAL SMITH.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Potter Investigating Committee met at noon and resumed the examination of Gen. L. C. Smith, who stated that he had searched among the papers and found no copy of letters sent by him to Senator Matthews. He said that he had gone to the Executive Mansion this morning and ascertained from the records that the Comm letter had been referred to the Treasury Department March 10th, 1877.

Mr. Butler—A letter from a Senator brought by a person recommended in that letter for an appointment is usually filed, is it not?

A.—That depends entirely upon how it is addressed. If to the Appointment Clerk or Secretary of the Treasury it is filed.

Q.—Did you see the President about Anderson after you had received the second letter?

A.—No. I never saw the President about Anderson but once.

Q.—Did you hear about Anderson's appointment as Consul to Funchal?

A.—No. It would have made no difference if I had.

Mr. Butler—Please confine yourself to answering my questions.

The witness—it will give me great pleasure to do so.

Q.—Have you the telegram from Senator Matthews mentioned by you yesterday?

A.—Yes, I found two copies.

Mr. Butler—Here is a telegram dated June 17th, signed by Stanley Matthews, which reads: "Letter received. No answer needed." When did you find this?

A.—In my personal files this morning.

Q.—Now, then, you wrote a letter, did you not, to Mr. Matthews, enclosing one of Anderson's, and you told him you did not know any thing that letter contained?

A.—That is my recollection.

Q.—And that was before you wrote the letter of the 23d?

A.—No, I think it was after.

Q.—What makes you think so?

A.—I think it was in consequence of my intimation to him of the contents of Mr. Matthews' letter.

Gen. Butler read from the record the letter of Anderson to Matthews of June 19th, wherein Anderson complains of the position of Collector of Customs being offered to him, and then referred to Matthews' letter of the 23d, wherein the latter says that he met Anderson on the cars, and that Anderson expressed himself as satisfied.

The witness—That entirely confirms what I said. If you look upon the next page you will find a letter from Anderson of the date of the 25th, wherein he says that General Smith had shown him Senator Matthews' letter.

Q.—Is this the only letter you showed Anderson?

A.—I did not say I showed any.

Q.—Is this the only letter that you communicated the text of?

A.—Yes, sir.

General Smith was questioned at some length as to the time when he transmitted to Senator Matthews Anderson's letter, and stated that he thought it was on June 20th. He said that Anderson was dissatisfied with the offer of a clerkship in the Treasury, but seemed to like the idea of Inspectorship better. He did not learn from either the President or from Anderson that the latter had been to the President before he went there with witness. General Smith then handed Butler two letters from Anderson to him.

Q.—Had you any personal or friendly relations with Anderson when you received these letters?

A.—Well, nothing more than that I had obliged him in several ways.

Did you oblige him officially or in a matter of personal friendship?

A.—I did not analyze my motives at the time and can not tell.

General Butler then read the following letter:

"WASHINGTON, July 11, 1877.
"General T. C. H. Smith, Appointment Clerk, &c.:
"DEAR SIR—I withdrew my application for a position in your department, and ask instead for the appointment of my brother John M. Anderson as an Inspector of Customs in Baltimore. I will be satisfied with that.
Yours truly,
"JAMES E. ANDERSON."

Q.—Did you consider that a personal letter?

A.—I did.

Gen. Butler then read the following:

"PHILADELPHIA, April 30, 1878.
"MY DEAR GENERAL—Has Senator Matthews said anything to you or made any arrangements with you about the appointment of a man whom I shall name to a position in the Custom-house in this city? Please answer at your earliest convenience, and oblige. Yours truly,
"JAMES E. ANDERSON."
"General T. C. H. Smith, Appointment Clerk, &c."

Gen. Smith, in reply to a question, said that the Comm letter was the only letter concerning Anderson on file in the Department. He further said that he had suggested Anderson's brother for an appointment upon the strength of the letter sent him by Senator Matthews.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Senate Committee for the investigation of the Matthews matter met at 12 o'clock. Mr. Allison presiding. Mr. Anderson appeared, accompanied by the Senate Sergeant-at-Arms, but he was excused until the Committee had released him. The Committee then took a recess. Senator Matthews was present.

THE POPE'S HEALTH.

LONDON, June 13.—A dispatch from Rome says the reports circulated from time to time concerning the ill health of the Pope are denounced at the Vatican as inventions partly inspired by mere malice and partly having a political object. The Pope is quite as well as he has been for many years. Although not a strong man, he has no disease that causes anxiety. It is observed at the Vatican that the Holy Father is as far from feeling weak and indisposed that he volunteers to perform functions that don't necessarily pertain to his office.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

Last Rites and Habits of the Venerable Poet-Journalist.

National Associated Press to the Star.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The funeral services of the late Mr. William Cullen Bryant will probably be held at Dr. Bellows' Church on Friday morning. There will be no pallbearers and no flowers. Dr. Bellows will deliver a short address, and will read the usual burial service. The body will then be taken to Mr. Bryant's home at Roslyn, L. I., and be buried beside Mrs. Bryant, who died July, 1866. Further particulars will be arranged to-day.

The surviving members of Mr. Bryant's immediate family are two brothers, Arthur and John Howard Bryant, who are both living in the West, and two daughters, the eldest of whom is the wife of Parke Godwin.

John Howard Bryant enrolled his name among the list of American poets by some very good work in his younger days. He is now citizen of Princeton, Illinois. In a letter written March 3d, 1871, Mr. Bryant describes his domestic habits, to which he partly ascribed the wonderful preservation of his physical and mental vigor. He says: "At this season he rises at half-past five and an hour earlier in summer, and immediately begins a series of exercises, which he continues for a full hour, after which he bathes. For breakfast he takes honey and milk, or brown bread, oat meal or wheaten grits, and in season baked sweet apples. He never declines any article of vegetable food but never takes animal food for breakfast, nor tea or coffee at any time. After breakfast he occupies himself with his studies and when in town walks down to the office of the Evening Post, three miles, and after about three hours' returns, always walking, whatever be the weather. In the country he dines early, taking either meat or fish moderately, making a dinner mostly of vegetables. At tea he only takes a little bread and butter. In town he dines later, but only has two meals per day. His drink is water, but sometimes, though rarely, he takes a glass of wine, finding that wine confused rather than exhilarated him."

He never meddles with tobacco except to quarrel with its use. He avoids every kind of literary occupation in the evening."

The main entrance of the Evening Post building and exterior of the counting-room in the basement have been draped with black cloth. Mr. Bryant's own room in the editorial offices has been closed, and black cloth hung in folds above the door. Everything within the room remains precisely as he left it. The Evening Express appeared in mourning, having been printed with turned rolls.

HARTFORD, CT., June 13.—Prof. Richter's outdoor exhibition of his flying machine yesterday was a decided success. Conflict Between Strikers and Troops.

The Parliament Adjourns Through Fear.

National Associated Press to the Star.

QUEBEC, June 13.—Several thousand strikers were addressed yesterday by a man said to be a French Communist. At the close of his remarks they proceeded to Mr. Peters' mill, and smashing open the door, entered the building and demolished everything they could find. The cavalry then made their appearance, but when they attempted to disperse the mob they were met by volleys of stones, several of the men and officers being badly bruised. The rioters then advanced to the Parliament Buildings, and Premier Joly advised them to keep the peace and resume work, but without avail.

They then proceeded to Renand & Co.'s store, forcibly took possession and compelled some draymen to convey upwards of one hundred barrels of flour to their homes. A squad of mounted battymen came soon on the scene and patrolled the streets. Shortly afterwards the strikers attacked the military with stones, when one of the companies fired on the mob killing one man outright and wounding several others. Two or three of the officers were severely hurt with stones thrown by the mob. Capt. Shore had his head cut so that the blood was streaming down his face and neck. The cavalry then ascended Mountain Hill from St. Paul street.

The residence of the Mayor was sacked last night by the rioters. Three regiments are momentarily expected from Montreal, and over five hundred special constables have been sworn in. It is rumored that the ship laborers will join the strikers to-day.

Two thousand rioters assembled last night, and resolved to meet to-day and have blood for blood. They visited the jail, and demanded the release of their prisoners. Being refused, they broke in all the windows and left.

The Provincial Parliament adjourned last night through dread of the mob, and the city is in a state of perfect siege.
